Healthy Indoor Air Quality for All*

WAUKESHA, WI - November 1, 2023 - Worldwide expert on healthy and green building materials and founder of the Green Design Center, Andrew Pace has joined Change the Air Foundation, a nonprofit dedicated to improving lives through better indoor air quality as a board member.

With over 30 years of experience and knowledge in the healthy home building materials world, Andrew will play a proactive role in the organization committed to creating awareness and educating the industry on the correlation between healthy building materials, indoor air quality and the health and wellness of the occupants.

“Andy brings a wealth of knowledge and experience to the board of Change the Air and is a passionate and hands-on leader dedicated to problem solving and implementing best practices in managing mold, water damage, HVAC and other integral home building details that impact the lives of its inhabitants,” says Kendra Seymour, Vice Chair of Change the Air Foundation, Inc.

Both the Green Design Center and Change the Air Foundation are committed to educating and resourcing materials and methods that will improve lives for years to come.

“I am thrilled to join the board of Change the Air Foundation as they are such an incredible team of action takers. Their reach is vast and their message will help others to make smarter choices in creating safer living environments,” says Andrew Pace, Founder of the Green Design Center.

About Change the Air Foundation:

Change the Air Foundation is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization founded by a group of passionate air quality professionals and advocates aiming to give every person the knowledge, resources, and support to achieve better health by breathing safe indoor air. The Foundation addresses this hidden epidemic of poor indoor air quality through three main initiatives: education, policy reform, and research. Change the Air believes safe indoor air is a basic human right. For more on our initiatives, please visit <https://changetheairfoundation.org/initiatives/> and @changetheairfdn.
